Tyler Bolden (8th) joined football to prove that he was capable of representing Cockrill with pride. "I tried out for the team because I wanted a chance to show the coaches that I can play," Tyler says. He looks up to his two older brothers as role models so he can follow in their footsteps. This season, Tyler scored 3 touchdowns against Scott Johnson. With lots of great plays and running, Tyler wants to continue to tell his story in high school.

Telling its own Story

The story of fine arts, sports and electives at Cockrill goes deeper than just the cover. It is really a story of the effort and determination each student puts in both inside and outside of school to bring themselves to reach their goals. Without weeks of practice, PALS can't develop the proper leadership skills to work successfully with their partners. As for cheerleaders, most of them cheer outside of school, which helps them stand out as superiors. "Being in competitive cheer, I have the skills down and it helps me feel more comfortable performing at school," says Sarah Russell (7th).
